From the Senior Chaplain

I am writing this article on the day we begin the 25th annual Broyles Mission Conference. I am anticipating an extraordinary conference. The conference committee, chaired by Susan Dean and Millann Funk, has invested many hours in preparation. They have planned, they have organized, they have solicited volunteers, but most importantly, they have prayed. I am blessed by their exercise of faith. So today, even before I see what unfolds during the conference, I am believing God to stir our hearts and spirits for greater outreach and service in 2015. Certainly the fields are white with the harvest. “Lord, we pray that we will be the harvest workers You have called us to be. Stir our hearts to be disciple makers.”

This morning we welcome the Lee Chorale. They have been to Big Canoe many times and we are always blessed by their smiles and spirit. I want to thank everyone who provided housing and meals for this wonderful group of young people.

Today we also welcome Alex Nsengimana to the pulpit as he shares his story of tragedy and forgiveness. It is an incredible account of God’s grace and provision. I hope you will be mindful of the hand of God reaching into all of our lives to bring renewal and restoration. It’s not a miracle of the Father reserved for only a select few. As the old gospel song says, “What He’s done for others, He’ll do for you.” Perhaps the Lord is calling you today to forgive someone who has wronged you. Why don’t you ask Him to give you the power to forgive? I believe He will answer the cry of your heart.

As you know, Big Canoe Chapel has a DNA. It is God’s people committed to missions, service, and outreach. It is a church singing and praying, “Where You lead me, I will follow. I’ll go with You, with You, all the way.” God bless you as we follow the living Lord together. And what a journey it is!

Blessings and peace,

Len
